N: Course Content

Major Themes:

1) The Canadian Constitution

Using the text and a reader, students would study the constitutional process in Canada from 1867 to the present. This part of the course would cover the origin and evolution of the Canadian Constitution, the formal Executive, Monarchy and Governor General, the structure and role of the Courts, federal/provincial powers, patriation of Canada's constitution (1982), the Meech Lake Accord and the Charlottetown Accord (1992.)

2) Federalism

Concepts of federalism would be examined and evaluated. Canadian federalism, its origin and evolution will be analyzed. The history of basic concepts of fiscal federalism will be studied in the Canadian context. Finally, the major challenges to federalism will be studied in terms of dualism (French/English), Quebec nationalism and the regional dynamics that influence the nature of the Canadian government.

3) The Prime Minister, Ministry and Cabinet

The role and powers of the political executive will be examined, with particular emphasis on the central role of the Prime Minister. Cabinet formulation, operations, structure, and the roles of Cabinet Ministers will be discussed. Policy formulation at the executive level will be examined, with reference to major coordinating agencies such as the Prime Minister Office and the Privy Council Office.

4) Legislative Politics

The structure and role of the Parliament of Canada will be examined with particular reference to the processes in Parliament, the committee system, and the role of the individual M.P. The role and function of the government and the opposition will be examined.

5) The Civil Service

The basic structure and role of the civil service will be examined. Particular emphasis will be placed on the functions of the civil service both in terms of the implementation and the development of public policy.

O: Methods of Instruction

The course will be based on one two-hour lecture and one two-hour seminar per week, some class sessions may involve student presentations or formal student debate on the chapters/readings.

P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students

A text and reading will be chosen based on individual instructor’s preferences in consultation and with the approval of the department.

SAMPLE TEXT:

Rand Dyck, Canadian Politics, Critical Approaches, 3rd ed. (Nelson Thompson Learning, Scarborough), 2000.

Q: Means of Assessment

The course evaluation will be based on the course objectives and in accordance with Douglas College policy and the policies of the Political Science Department. A minimum of 50% of the student’s grades will be assigned to the mid-term and end of term examinations. A minimum of 30% of the student’s grades will be assigned to a formal research essay. A maximum of 20% of student’s grade will be based upon a series of components, for example: quizzes, short essay, attendance, participation, class presentations. The specific evaluation criteria will be provided by the instructor at the beginning of the semester.

One example of an evaluation scheme:

Mid-term test	20%
Book Review	20%
Research Essay	30%
Final exam	30%
Total:	100%
